2. Subordinate to the Central Committee of the party were the seven provincial committees and the P'yŏngyang Special City Committee. Before 1951 there were city, gun, myŏn, and ri committees subordinate to the provincial committees. Because of the decrease in party membership during the war, some city and gun committees were combined, and liaison sections were established in place of the myŏn and ri committees. There were 15-20 members in each liaison section.
